The red lady bird

Once upon a time there was a lady bird who was slurping on a yellow flower in a green bush next to the brown house. Then it was fall and the green bush was old and the wavy grass was old. The sky was gone too, then the lady bird moved to another place and that place was good because it has flowers to slurp on.