The Ladybird

Once upon a time there was an ladybird. He was a spotty ladybird. He lived in a new clean and cold waterfall. When the ladybird was going to get food, he got lost in the grass. It was very dark and green. He could not fly because his wings were wet. So he made a little house to stay in for the night. The next day his wings were dry so he flew back to the waterfall. His mother and father were worried. When he got back from getting the food his parents were not worried.
